

Tenders

Tenders at their core involve the efficient selection of a winning bidder that is preferred above all other competing bidders. By its nature, tenders are therefore exposed to many litigation risks. Legal support in this area therefore requires extensive practical experience and thorough familiarity with the field and the developing law, which must be meticulously and strictly implemented as of the earliest stage of the procurement process, and drafting of the tender documents.

This field also requires in-depth knowledge of interrelating disciplines, such as game theory. The success of the tender process and the resulting financial savings, are due to preliminary study of the relevant industry and informed selection of the type of tender most suited to the particular circumstances of the case.

With our public-body clients, our firm's tender department leads, assimilates and implements advanced and innovative methods of tenders that rely on accumulated experience and innovations in law. Later on, once the procurement process is underway, our firm provides more frequent advice to the tender committee, while offering an immediate and correct response in real-time to the various challenges that tend to arise in all tenders.
